Mr. Amit Bajpai (Assistant Director (i/c) Br. MSM-DI, Itanagar, Arunachal Pradesh) highlighted various schemes and funding opportunities for setting up the dedicated center in the University. He pressed for efforts to create new startups, expand existing firms, capacity building, and training in the region to propel the economy in the area.

Since Arunachal Pradesh is gifted with bountiful natural resources and biodiversity, including medicinal plants, Dr. Rohit, the famous entrepreneur in the fragrance and aroma business, expressed his willingness to explore business opportunities in the state.

Mr. A.P. Singh conveyed to the participants that FFDC, Kannauj, conducts several training programs to enhance the schemes and employability of the rural artisans catering to the aroma and fragrance industry.

In the valedictory session, an MoU was signed between the RGU and the FFDC to strengthen the collaborative partnership to promote research, training, and resource mobilization to develop the fragrance and aroma sector in northeast India.

Background India has always been a land of olfactory indulgence right from ancient times. The benefits of essential oils from aromatic herbs and fragrant plants for mental well-being, beauty and Note healing power is quite well known and is even recommended by the Ayurveda. The global fragrance & flavour market reached a value of US$ 31.7 billion in 2020, which is further expected to reach a value of US$ 40.6 billion by 2025. India contributes US$ 500 million (approx.) to the global fragrance & flavour market. The Indian fragrance market is stably growing at the rate of 11% in recent times. The key driving force for this growth is due to widespread application of fragrance and flavour in varied sectors viz. foods and beverages industries, home-care, health (aromatherapy) aesthetics, personal care and cosmetic market. India, being a land of rich floral diversity and varied geo climatic zones can sufficiently produce organic fragrant raw materials, having great demand worldwide. Considering the close linkages of the fragrance and flavour industries with grass-roots economics, it can be a major thrust to the Indian economy. Arunachal Pradesh is bestowed with rich biodiversity by Mother Nature. The prevailing agro-climatic conditions are favourable for producing a great variety of exotic fruits, vegetables, herbs, and fragrant plants with unique flavor, aroma, and essential oils. Thus, the state has huge potential for fulfilling the needs of the fragrance and flavour market in the country and abroad. In this backdrop, the Rajiv Gandhi University (RGU), Arunachal Pradesh proposes one day national webinar on theme "Revitalizing the Potential of Aroma Industry in Arunachal Pradesh: Local to Global Perspectives" in collaboration with Fragrance & Flavour Development Centre (FFDC), Ministry of MSME, Govt. of India, Kannauj, Uttar Pradesh. The proposed webinar envisions to explore the possibilities of setting up aroma industries in the state leading to the enhancement of livelihood opportunity for the people.
