6. Need for the Activity:

In context to Arunachal Pradesh, as a border state with limited education, the social media messages which are looming around is making a great impact to many individuals. It encourages to believes in the information and act accordingly without any background check. The fact check mechanism is very new. This leads to many unwanted events which happens often in the state. The youths need to be empowered with the basic understanding of the power of the social media and their primary contribution to nation building process. They need to understand a constructive citizen journalist will play a positive role.

7. Objectives of the Activity

- a. To train the youth participants with the understanding of citizen journalism and participatory communication for bringing social change.
- b. To train the youth participants the drawback of misinformation/disinformation and fake news which is hampering our growth
- c. To trains the youth participant the various uses of social media platform with more sincerity and with responsibility.

8. Proceedings of the Activity

(Not exceeding 500 words giving details of session –wise activities)

INAUGURAL SESSION: The inaugural session was conducted at the Smart classroom of Department of Mass Communication, Rajiv Gandhi University in online mode following all SoPs.

Prof. Saket Kushwaha, Vice Chancellor of the university as the chair to the inaugural function spoke at length about democracy and the importance of journalism. Highlighting in this era of post-truth, the understanding of things becomes quite vague, he said. Prof. Kushwaha added that one's perspectives and opinion that caters to an event is always a talking point specially with citizen journalist getting popular.

Prof. Amitava Mitra, Pro Vice Chancellor of the University in his speech talked about empowering the youths with future ready skills and education. Prof. Mitra emphases that the primary objective to journalism is to unearth the truth but sometimes it is difficult face the truth, but it's the only way out to go forward as a society.

Dr. N. T. Rikam, Registrar of the University taking part in the inaugural session highlighted that with the digital media and social media in particular, anyone with a smart phone can click photos, record videos and put up on the internet and tell a story. But he stressed that the big question which we need to answer is whether it is a good thing or a bad thing. He added, it's good that citizen journalist are coming up with news stories which are need to be told and such coverage by common man is giving an opportunity to look from a different side apart from the mainstream media.

Prof. Sibnath Deb, the Director Rajiv Gandhi National Institute of Youth Development (RGNIYD) also graced the inaugural function along with Prof. Vasanthi Rajendran from the institute.

TECHNICAL SESSION 1: The first technical session was conducted by Dr. Md. Asghar from the Department of Anthropology, RGU on the topic "NYP (National Youth Policy) and sustainable development. He highlighted all the principles and guidelines of the National Youth Policy and emphasise more on its application to a tribal state like Arunachal Pradesh. Taking his cue of his experience in staying with many youths of the state mainly from far flung areas of the state, he said that many of the youths have to understand the policies and programmes of the government and understand their role in building a new India. He connected his talks with an aim to bring sustainable development in all the ventures that the youths take. Arunachal Pradesh predominantly a hilly state has huge potential in term of green resources which can be harnessed in a very sustainable way.

TECHNICAL SESSION 2: The second technical session was conducted by Dr. Sunil Koijam, Department of Mass Communication, RGU on the topic "Introduction to Digital Journalism and Social Media". He deliberated the concept of digital journalism which is empowering everyone whether they are trained or not to the profession but can take part in decision making of the society.
